Baylor University
Louise Herrington School of Nursing
Dallas, Texas

Graduate Programs Director

Baylor University, a private Christian university and a nationally ranked research institution, seeks an accomplished nursing educator with graduate nursing program experience to serve as Graduate Programs Director of the Louise Herrington School of Nursing. This position reports to the Dean of the School of Nursing and also is accountable to the Dean of the Graduate School.

The Opportunity

Baylor University's Louise Herrington School of Nursing (LHSON) is recognized as a leader in nursing education. LHSON is ranked in the top 50 in 2017 Best Graduate Schools of Nursing guide by U.S. News & World Report as well as one of the top 10 nursing schools in Texas by Best-Nursing-Colleges.com.

Located near downtown Dallas, the school will soon move to a nearby four-story, 100,000-square-foot building, which is under renovation. Formerly the home of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, the new Nursing School campus will be adjacent to the Baylor Medical Center.

The Graduate Programs Director is a faculty position with 50 percent reassigned time for duties for program director. The areas of responsibility will vary depending upon tenure status, administrative role, specialty area, and specific workload assignment. General responsibilities include teaching and its related scholarly work; research and scholarship; and service to the university, the faculty member's professional field, and the community.

Evaluated annually by the Dean of Nursing, the Graduate Programs Director is appointed/reappointed every three years by the Graduate School Dean in consultation with the Dean of Nursing. The director serves at the pleasure of the deans.

Qualifications

Candidate must have a doctorate in nursing or related field with a graduate degree in nursing. Teaching experience in a graduate nursing program and a proven record of scholarship and academic achievement consistent with the rank of associate to full professor for either tenure or clinical track status are required. Candidate must have either teaching or administrative experience leading a DNP program.

Candidate must be eligible for unrestricted licensure as a Registered Nurse in the state of Texas.

Academic administrative experience in graduate nursing education with an established national reputation for leadership is preferred. Experience with program accreditation is highly desirable.

A qualified candidate will have excellent communication skills and the ability to collaborate within the school, university, and interdisciplinary practice communities.

Mission and Motto

The goal and mission of the Baylor University Louise Herrington School of Nursing is to prepare baccalaureate and graduate level nurses, within a Christian community that prepares them for professional practice, healthcare leadership and worldwide service. Faculty and staff work together to create an environment where students may develop the professional leadership skills necessary to excel in patient care and the critical thinking skills to meet the needs and demands of the profession. Through our motto: Learn.Lead.Serve.™ we strive to provide our students with a competitively robust education. Together we support Baylor's strategic vision, Pro Futuris, that reminds us that our past is inextricably linked to our future and that responsibility to God and to the world continues to lead us.

within Baylor Hospital in Dallas, which is now Baylor University Medical Center. In 1950, it became one of the six degree-granting schools of Baylor University.

The inaugural class of nursing students studying for baccalaureate degrees graduated in 1952, establishing the school as one of the oldest baccalaureate nursing programs in the United States. In 1999, the school was renamed the Baylor University Louise Herrington School of Nursing in honor of Louise Herrington Ornelas, a 1992 Baylor Alumna Honoris Causa, who made an endowment gift to the school.

LHSON has an outstanding national reputation based on revered faculty, curriculum, students, and donors. The school is committed to providing its students with a competitively robust nursing education and pacesetter clinical experiences in a faith-based environment exemplified by its motto: *Learn.Lead.Serve.*TM

More than 800 students are enrolled in the undergraduate and graduate programs. All programs are accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE). The school offers Bachelor of Science in Nursing degrees through a Traditional program and FastBacc, a one-year accelerated second degree program.

At the graduate level, LHSON offers the Master of Science in Nursing Leadership and Innovation Online Program. The Doctor of Nursing Practice program has three specialty tracks: Family Nurse Practitioner, Nurse Midwifery, and Neonatal Nurse Practitioner Online.

Caring for the medically underserved is a special focus for the nursing programs at all levels. Through domestic and international missions students give back to the community with their nursing skills and spiritual heart. The Nursing Study Abroad program offers the option of a Family Nurse Practitioner International Practicum in Ethiopia or Zambia.

The Doctor of Nursing Practice program was listed as #45, the Nurse Midwifery program #10, and the Master of Science in Nursing program #58 in the 2017 U.S. News and World Report Best Graduate Schools rankings.
