Announcing a National Search for

Dean of the School of Education and Human Services

Oakland University, a highly respected and nationally recognized research university in Rochester, Michigan, seeks nominations and applications for Dean of the School of Education and Human Services. As the School's chief executive officer, the Dean reports directly to the Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost. The Dean provides overall strategic leadership, administration, and fiscal management of the School, and provides leadership among various constituencies throughout the University, state, region, and nation.
The Opportunity

The Dean will report to Dr. James Lentini, Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost, who joined Oakland University in 2013, after serving as Dean of the School of Creative Arts at Miami University in Ohio. Dr. Lentini seeks a leader for the School of Education and Human Services (SEHS) who can continue to strengthen its programs through innovation and strategic partnerships and to create programs that address developing trends in education and human services.

Additonally, the SEHS Dean is responsible for providing outstanding educational programs for its students, opportunities for scholarly productivity, and service to the campus, neighboring community, and beyond.

Primary Responsibilities

- Recruit and retain a diverse, highly motivated, and productive faculty
- Foster the development of new academic initiatives and partnerships that will benefit students and the community at large
- Sustain and expand the School’s commitment to diversity
- Oversee a balanced budget of the School, including the shifting of resources as necessary and the expansion of revenue through creative initiatives, grants, contracts, and partnerships
- Encourage faculty and staff development by staying abreast of technological changes and innovations in the workplace and classroom
- Collaborate with stakeholders to develop and pursue a vision and goals that anticipate how the School will best serve its constituencies now and in the future
- Pursue fund-raising opportunities that will enhance the excellence of existing and expanding programs
- Provide leadership for a full range of academic administrators, chairpersons, administrative professionals, and clerical and technical staff
- Represent the School on the Dean’s Council and the University Senate and at other internal and external meetings

Required Qualifications

Qualified candidates for this position will hold an earned doctorate from a regionally accredited institution in a field contained within the School and must have extensive experience in academic administration/leadership. Applicants must have the academic credentials and a strong scholarly

Desired Attributes

The successful SEHS Dean will be:

• An intellectual with proven academic leadership who will inspire trust and instill confidence throughout the School’s community
• A visionary individual who will work collaboratively with faculty, staff, and departments to provide strategic thinking, planning, and entrepreneurship for the School
• A strategic thinker who is knowledgeable and responsive to global, national, and state issues in education and human services; and who is an effective and articulate advocate for the mission and value of schools of education and human services in society
• A transparent and courageous decision-maker who listens to and communicates well with a multitude of constituencies, builds consensus, and has the fortitude to make difficult choices when necessary
• An educator with integrity, who has a passion for academic excellence, effective teaching, and student achievement
• A leader committed to supporting and expanding research opportunities for undergraduate and graduate students
• A scholar who understands the importance of collaborating with faculty to advance research and garner external grant funding, and who seeks new and creative ways to continue to attract, support, and retain high-quality faculty
• An administrator with a deep understanding of and respect for Oakland’s commitment to shared governance and collective bargaining, and an appreciation of the important roles of faculty and staff in achieving the School’s mission
• An entrepreneur who has proven leadership in collaborating and partnering with community agencies, schools, professional organizations, governmental entities, alumni, businesses, foundations, and others
• An innovative and resourceful administrator with financial management skills who will aid the School in matching aspirations with finite resources, think creatively about alternative revenue streams, and lead fund-raising efforts
• A strong managerial leader who promotes collaboration and will seek the best from her/his leadership team
• A person of global perspective, committed to fostering diversity and inclusion in its many forms
• An ardent participant and contributor who has an enthusiastic campus presence, actively engaged in a learning community of faculty, students, staff, alumni, and the local Oakland community

School of Education and Human Services

The SEHS integrates human resource development with counseling and education to prepare collaborative leaders capable of and committed to empowering an inclusive society. The School has received recognition for Coalition – Oakland County (LACO).
The School offers professional development for teachers, counselors, and administrators through programs hosted at convenient off-campus locations and online. The Office of Professional Development and Education Outreach also provides continuing education for counselors, and partners with school districts and other external organizations. Highly regarded across the University, the School collaborates heavily with the OU College of Arts and Sciences.

The Department of Counseling offers master’s and doctoral programs for both school counseling and community counseling. All of the programs are taught by a diverse faculty with a broad range of experience and specialties. SEHS also offers several advanced specializations for professionals and students.

A growing emphasis of the School is on global education, including international programs in China and Ireland.

Research is an integral component of SEHS. The area, with its broad range of businesses and culturally diverse populations, offer faculty and students unique environments for research and outreach.

Service learning is emphasized throughout the School, enabling students to contribute to the community and its quality of life. Additionally, several on-campus centers and initiatives provide services and enrichment opportunities to the community. The School is home to 11 centers of excellence. Among them are the Oakland University Center for Autism Research, Education, and Support (OUCARES); Counseling Center; Adult Career Counseling Center; Reading and Writing Clinic; Lowry Center for Early Childhood Education; Galileo Institute for Teacher Leadership; and Pawley Lean Institute. The School also supports several outreach initiatives, including the Michigan Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity (SOGI) conference, and the Learning Achievement Coalition – Oakland County (LACO).

SEHS is accredited by CACREP and TEAC (CAEP). The School received the highest level of accreditation granted by TEAC, and the State of Michigan ranks it as an exemplary Educator Preparation Institution.

Oakland University

Established in 1957, Oakland University is one of the fastest growing public universities in Michigan. A vibrant academic community, the University currently enrolls more than 20,000 students, boasts more than 94,000 alumni, and delivers more than 260 degree and certificate programs.

The 1,443-acre campus of wooded hills and meadows is located in Rochester, a community that has been consistently identified as one of the most desirable places to live in the nation.

The University has grown at a tremendous pace. In 2011, Oakland established Michigan’s first new medical school in 47 years.

The following year Oakland opened the $62-million Human Health Building and initiated a number of transformative projects designed to improve the college experience.

In fall 2012, the University broke ground on a 127,000-square-foot, world-class engineering center. Construction projects launched in 2013 include a 1,240-space... parking structure, a new outdoor recreation and athletic complex, a nearly $30-million student housing complex, and a new headquarters for facility and grounds maintenance operations.

Oakland provides a distinct educational experience with flexible class schedules and state-of-the-art facilities, student services, classroom technologies, research labs, internships, and research opportunities with corporate partners. Located in the heart of Oakland County’s Automation Alley, the University has forged hundreds of partnerships with hospitals, Fortune 500 companies, cities, government agencies, and educational institutions.

Rochester, Michigan

The city of Rochester offers a perfect mix of historic and hip. The vibrant downtown attracts both residents and visitors and is home to many shops, restaurants, and businesses. The city’s natural beauty is attributed to the waterways that surround the downtown and the abundant green space that three parks and two winding trails offer.
