Associate Vice President for Development

Located in Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania

at The Bloomsburg University Foundation, Inc.

The Bloomsburg University Foundation, Inc., invites applications and nominations for the position of Associate Vice President for Development. The Foundation seeks an experienced, collaborative fundraiser and administrator to serve as the chief development officer and director of the fundraising activities that serve the needs of Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania. The Associate Vice President reports to the Executive Director of the Foundation and is under the direction of the Vice President for University Advancement.

THE LEADERSHIP OPPORTUNITY

For more than 175 years, Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania has been providing educational experiences that transform lives. The University takes an interest in every student, developing men and women who use the privilege of a college education not just for self, but also for the good of others. The alumni — many of whom are first-generation college students from across Pennsylvania and beyond — point to their experiences at Bloomsburg as setting the course for future accomplishments.

Bloomsburg University is experiencing great momentum in its enrollment, programs, and fundraising. The institution is different than it was even a decade ago: greater in number, broader in programs, and more engaged with its community and world. What has stayed constant is its commitment to prepare students for personal and professional success.

A separate 501(c)(3) organization, The Bloomsburg University Foundation, Inc. was incorporated in 1970 as the philanthropic arm of Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania. When Dr. David Soltz was appointed President of Bloomsburg in 2008, a priority was placed on resource development, and the Foundation evolved into an active fundraising organization for the University, growing from a staff of three to a professional team of 20. Dr. Bashar Hanna, who became BU's 19th president in July 2017, is committed to continuing to grow private philanthropic support for the University.

Over the past nine years, the BU Foundation has established a track-record of success. In 2015, the University and the BU Foundation publicly launched It's Personal: The Campaign for Bloomsburg University. With a $50 million goal, the campaign was the largest fundraising initiative in the University's history.

The initial conclusion of the fundraising campaign was set for December 2017. However, the campaign met its goal in 2016, with the final total of funds raised topping more than $62 million when it concluded six months early, upon the retirement of President Soltz on June 30, 2017.

The campaign has demonstrated the generosity of Bloomsburg alumni and the strong support of the community and foundations for the University and its mission and programs.

Governed by a 23-member Board of Directors, the BU Foundation is operationally funded through a service contract with Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania, which covers the majority of operational expenses. Due to the success of the campaign, the University has renewed its operating contract with the BU Foundation for an additional six years.

This position provides an excellent opportunity for an experienced fundraiser who has the creativity, drive, and ability to direct a successful development program as a leader, but who also fully embraces the role of a team member and a mentor.

THE POSITION

The Associate Vice President for Development (Associate Vice President) is responsible for the supervision of major gifts, annual giving, planned giving, and communications functions. This officer builds, maintains, and strengthens relationships among the various Bloomsburg University constituencies. A key member of the leadership team, the Associate Vice President is instrumental in the development and execution of fundraising campaigns as well as the Foundation's strategic growth.

The Associate Vice President reports to the Executive Director of the BU Foundation and takes direction from the Vice President for University Advancement, who sets the fundraising priorities with the President and oversees External Relations, Alumni and Professional Engagement, Career Development, Internships, and Marketing and Communications.

The Associate Vice President will work closely and travel with the University President on fundraising initiatives. This senior fundraiser also will maintain professional relationships with key leadership within the University and the BU Foundation.

To be successful in this position, the Associate Vice

BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY (BU)

Bloomsburg is the third largest of the 14 universities in Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education. Located 75 miles north of Harrisburg and 137 miles west of Philadelphia, the University overlooks the town of Bloomsburg, located along the beautiful Susquehanna River.

The University's 366-acre campus is situated near the community's business district. BU also has a satellite location in Center City, Philadelphia, and degree-completion programs at five of the state's community colleges.

Ranked among the nation's top northeast universities, Bloomsburg offers 56 programs leading to bachelor's degrees, 58 minors, and 20 graduate programs, including a doctorate in audiology — each preparing students for personal and professional success through experiential learning opportunities that complement classroom learning.

Approximately 9,700 undergraduate and graduate students are enrolled in courses across four colleges: Business, Education, Liberal Arts, and Science and Technology. The College of Business programs are accredited by AACSB International, along with a business education program accredited by CAEP, as well as a minor in Business and
