

SOUTH TEXAS COLLEGE

Invites Applications and Nominations for

DEAN OF DISTANCE LEARNING

DEAN OF DISTANCE LEARNING at South Texas College

South Texas College, a comprehensive, multi-campus public community college in the Rio Grande Valley, has launched a national search for the Dean of Distance Learning. The Search Committee invites applications, nominations, and expressions of interest for this administrator who will lead the College's fast-growing online programs.

The Opportunity

Founded in 1993, South Texas College (STC) serves more than 32,000 students across five state-of-the-art campuses, two Higher Education Centers, and one virtual campus. The largest and fastest growing higher educational institution south of San Antonio, STC offers 121 associate and baccalaureate degree programs and certifications, as well as continuing, professional, and workforce education programs and Dual Credit courses for eligible high school students.

More than 70 percent of the students are the first in their families to attend college, and more than 95 percent of the students are Hispanic. The Dual Credit program represents nearly 40 percent of the total enrollment and has served over 100,000 high school students since 2000.

Shirley A. Reed, MBA, Ed.D., is the founding president of STC. A highly respected college administrator, Dr. Reed brought two decades of experience in higher education to the presidency, previously having served as Vice President for Finance and Administrative Services at Northland Pioneer College in Arizona.

Her passion for providing educational opportunities is evident in all that has been accomplished by the College over the past 25 years. STC has transformed not only the lives of its students and graduates, but also the entire Rio Grande Valley.

STC has long been recognized as a catalyst for regional economic prosperity and social mobility for its service area in Hidalgo and Starr counties. Since the creation of South Texas College in 1993, the unemployment rate in its two-county district has dropped significantly from 24.1 percent to 7.9 percent for Hidalgo County, and from 40.3 percent to 13.0 percent for Starr County, as of August 2015. Additionally, the population below the poverty level has dropped from 41.5 percent to 34.8 percent for Hidalgo County, and from 59.6 percent to 39.2 percent in Starr County.

A first-generation college graduate herself, Dr. Reed credits her student experience at a community college for transforming her life. She knows the power that an education provides students and continually seeks innovative and new means of connecting with teenagers to seniors to prepare them for the future they envision for themselves.

STC's Distance Education Program is one of those connections. The program has been a model for colleges across the state and nation. Currently 20 associate degrees, eight certificates, and all four bachelor programs are available online. Approximately 25 percent of the student enrollment takes at least one class online.

South Texas College Online offers students much more than access to over 241 unique online courses and full online library services. Students also can complete registration; receive advising, tutoring, and counseling; take tests; and access payment services, financial aid, the bookstore, and much more. It is possible for students to earn their degrees without ever setting foot on a STC campus.

This is an exceptional opportunity for an academic leader who is committed

DEAN OF DISTANCE LEARNING at South Texas College

Shirley A. Reed, MBA, Ed.D.

Founding President of South Texas College

Dr. Shirley A. Reed has been at the helm of South Texas College since 1994. Her leadership and vision for designing and creating the college that would serve the needs of two of Texas' most impoverished counties have transformed not only thousands of lives, but also the economy and skilled workforce of the entire area.

Dr. Reed has been a pioneer in developing academic programs and career training paths that enable students of all ages to access higher education. The daughter of a miner, she says her own story is akin to those of STC students. A first-generation college student, she knows the difference education can make in one's life. Driven by her passion to empower men and women through education, she has embraced personalization, innovation, technology, and out-of-the-box solutions with exceptional success.

She has received numerous awards from local, state, regional, and national organizations in recognition of her outstanding success at South Texas College. She credits the success to the faculty and staff who share her passion and commitment for providing individuals with opportunities to achieve their aspirations and goals.

to serving students and passionate about their success.
